A- Cultural Feedback

From a cultural aspect, my Erasmus stay in Turkey was full of benefits : first, before deciding to go to Turkey, i did not knew much about this country (expect for the clichés, that all Turkish are wearing Fez, etc....).

I saw what really Turkey is, not the tv from the french travel tv channels. I lived with two Turkish flatmates, i had a great time with them, and i consider them as true friends, as my friends here in France. Also i realized that Turkey is not what Erdogan want the it to be : Istanbul is still more occidental, as well (maybe less) as the students I've met in Hacettepe university and Ankara. This country is not as traditionalist as the president wants it to be, and i know that the youth of Turkey will change the country in the future.

B-Academic feedback

From an academical aspect, and being an Erasmus, my time in Hacettepe university was interesting and it opened my mind. I had different classes from the ones i have in Albi, and the same classes or subject i had in Albi were treated differently in Hacettepe, which is really interesting. It gives my a new opinion and point of view, as well as a vision of how teachers from another country work. Even if my university year in Hacettepe university was a "semi-fail" because i passed one semester, it gave me a new cultural bagage and a new vision of what education is.
