I. Aim and Content: The main aim of this course is to study literary theories from I.A. Richard to the new developments in the 1970s onwards and to develop a critical awareness of literary theories and their application to the literary texts. The importance of T.S. Eliot, I.A. Richards's critical views, New Criticism, Russian Formalism, Structuralist Criticism, Post-structuralist Theories and Deconstruction, Post-colonial theories and Ecocriticism ...etc will enable the students to have different perspectives and to appreciate the literary texts within theories. By the end of this course, the students will be familiar with the key concepts and terminologies of the basic theories.

II. Texts:

Articles will be provided by the lecturer. An introductory book to the theory will be introduced to the students.

IV. Method of Instruction: The course will begin with introductory lectures which will later on be followed by a close study of the theories through critical discussion in the classroom.

V. Requirements: Full attendance is unconditionally required. More than 11 hours of absence will result in F1. The students are expected to read the assigned texts in advance. Reading secondary materials related to the literary theories are essential to broaden the students' perspectives. To this end, students will be asked to present the assigned articles in the class. Study questions will be given to the students related to the theories and articles. They are required to answer these questions by themselves and participate in the class discussion.

VI. Assessment: There will be two midterm examinations, study questions and a final. In grading the exam papers % 25 of the total mark will be taken off for grammatical mistakes and writing errors. In the final exam, the marks which are below 50 will be considered as failure.

Midterm Examinations: % 30 (% 15 each)

Study Questions and/or in class activities: % 15

Final: % 55
